From 1815 to 1824, it is estimated that 50,000 Irish immigrants arrived at the Port of Québec. From 1829 to 1837, 150,000 Irish immigrants arrived at the same Port of Québec. A great number of these Irish immigrants who landed in Québec City would settle in the United States of America and in Upper-Canada. The following cities, towns, townships and villages of Québec are those which I have identified with an Irish Catholic presence from about 1810 onward.

In order to determine where the Irish Catholics settled into Lower Canada and Québec, over a three year period, I reviewed hundreds of books of marriages, baptisms, deaths of Catholic parishes of Québec, said books stored at the Bibliothèque Archives nationales du Québec in Montréal (BAnQ). A number of microfilms were also reviewed at the same repository over the same period of time from about 2006 to 2009 and a further review was carried out by the author from January to May of 2014.

The Irish Churches of Québec

Quebec Church Records - see;

Montréal

There were some Irish in Montréal as early as the seventeenth century, unfortunately they were absorbed into the local French population. However, as was the case in Québec City, the Irish did not begin to settle in any large numbers until after 1815. Prior to the establishment of St-Patrick in 1847 and St-Ann in 1854, the churches of the Irish in Montréal were Notre Dame de Bon Secours, the Church of the Récollet Fathers and Notre Dame Basilica – The early Irish settlers of Montréal resided in Old Montréal plus the surrounding districts such as East, Centre, West Wards. At a later time period, the Irish would move westward, eastward and northward into Saint Ann’s, Saint Mary’s, Saint Antoine’s, Saint James, Saint Lawrence’s, Saint Louis Wards. The Irish were the primary résidents in districts such as Griffintown, Point-St-Charles and to a lesser extent in the St. Henry, Verdun, Ville Émard districts. About the same time, others would move eastward into the Rosemont, Hochelaga districts. Finally in the early 1900’s, the Irish would join the British, Scottish Catholics into regions which previously were the domains of the Protestants and the French. Furthermore, the Irish Catholics were not afraid to take residence where work was available or in many cases, many of the early Irish settlers became farmers and would settle in regions across Québec which were previously inhabited by the French, the Scots and the British, and many of these rural Irish families would eventually inter-marry with the latter groups and thus create a new Québec, a legacy which will forever be part of the folklore of this province.

Golden Jubilee of the Reverend Fathers Dowd and Toupin - Historical Sketch of Irish Community of Montreal by J.J. Curran - QFHS #BG-151.44 C8 - 97 pages

Old Montreal - Vieux Montréal - Notre Dame Basilica – First erected in 1642. From about 1815, the Irish would join the congregation, and for a 25 year period prior to the opening of Saint Patrick in 1846 and Saint Ann’s in 1848, the Irish parishioners at Notre Dame outnumbered the French at this House of Worship – From about 1825 and through the next 27 years, Father Patrick Phelan would minister to the Irish community - BAnQ under Église Notre-Dame (1815-1942) - Drouin-Pépin (1815-1942) - QFHS (1815-1942) - Ancestry.ca (1815-1942) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/504.htm

Old Montreal - Vieux Montréal - Notre Dame de Bon Secours - Bonsecours Church – Father Richard Jackson, an Irish priest, presiding in 1817. Church services were held in this ancient church, also referred to as Bonsecours Church for about 100 Irish families as early as 1817 - Rev. P. O’Connell, presiding in 1846 – First erected in 1658, the church was also known as Bonsecours Church – The church is located to this day on St. Paul street, opposite Bonsecours street in Old Montreal - BAnQ under Église Notre-Dame (1817-1942) - Drouin-Pépin (1817-1942) - QFHS (1817-1942) - Ancestry.ca (1817-1942) Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/505a.html
Old Montreal - Vieux Montréal - Church of the Récollets — First erected in 1692, this church would welcome it’s first Irish emigrants in 1824 – From 1830 to 1847, the church was predominantly the Church of the Irish. In 1846, Saint Patrick would open its doors. In 1854, the Récollets Church lost other parishioners when Saint Ann was established in Griffintown. The church was located on the corner of St. Helen (Hèlene) street near Notre Dame in Old Montréal, it was demolished in 1867, although the interior décor including the church altar were preserved and moved to the church of Notre-Dame des Anges on Lagauchetière Street. The latter building would later become the church of the Chinese community, it still exists to this day - BAnQ under Église Notre-Dame (1824-1854) - Drouin-Pépin (1824-1854) - QFHS (1824-1854) - Ancestry.ca (1824-1854) - Church photo, see; http://fr. wikipedia.org/wiki/Fichier:Ancienne_eglise_des_Recollets_Montreal.jpg

Downtown - Saint Antoine Ward - Saint Patrick Basilica – So much has been written about this Irish House of God, another narrative would be superfluous to say the least - BAnQ under Saint Patrick (1859-1941) under Église Notre-Dame (1846-1859) - Ancestry.ca (1859-1941 & 1846-1859) Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/698.html

Point St. Charles Fever Sheds - In 1847, the Emigrant Fever among the Irish immigrants had spread to Québec City and Montréal – In Montréal alone thousands of immigrants mostly Irish were affected by the dreaded typhus fever, thus affecting the general population – Up to 22 Fever Sheds were established in the Point St. Charles district in order to segregate the Irish immigrants from the rest of the citizens. One source places the deaths at 6000 – see also 1859 under Victoria Bridge / see also Grosse Isle, the latter following the Québec City church listing - BAnQ under Église Notre-Dame is most likely the best sources in order to identify some of the individuals who perished during this appalling period of Montreal’s history - A book by Sharon Doyle Driedger entitled An Irish Heart does describe The District of Death as referred by many at the time - Another book by Herbert Brown Ames, published in 1897 does describe the poverty and overcrowding of Griffintown - Another book by Tim Slattery, an historian who wrote a number of books about the Irish of Montreal, among them one entitled The Assasination of D’Arcy McGee is an excellent source of the Irish people of Montreal. see also McCord Museum www.mccord-museum.ca under: The Irish

Organized about 1848 as a Mission – The church opened in 1854 – This church was the soul and inspiration of the Irish Community – Although, it has been closed and demolished for years, Saint Ann is still referred to in numerous writings about the Irish of South Central Montréal – In 1884, a portion of the congregation of the Parish of Saint Ann were asked to join the ranks of Saint Gabriel. It appears that a fair number of Irish families agreed to the move - In 1982, the parish of St Ann would close its doors - Please note; parish registers for this church from 1854 to 1872 can be found among those of Notre Dame Cathedral - BAnQ under Saint Ann's (1873-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1873-1941) - QFHS (1873-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1873-1941) see also McCord Museum www.mccord-museum.qc.ca under: St. Anne's Ward

Saint Lawrence Ward – Church of the Gésu - Saint Mary – Located at 144 Bleury street at Dorchester, the elaborate church was part of Collège Ste-Marie (St. Mary’s College), and for many years the college would welcome members of the Irish community who resided uptown. Up to 5 daily masses were conducted in English at the church - Baptisms, marriages, burials were not conducted at this prestigious church, they were conducted at Notre Dame Cathedral - Church photos. see: McCord Museum at www.mccord-museum.qc.ca under: Église Gésu - see also; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/gesu.html

Québec Suburb - Saint James Ward – Saint Peter's Church – Rev. C. Leonard, Rev. T. Fitzhenry, presiding in 1854- Located at the corner of Visitation and Dorchester streets in a district known then as Québec Suburb, a region near today’s Jacques Cartier Bridge, the church was originally organized about 1826 by the Oblate Fathers as the Parish of Saint-Pierre. The first parishioners were mostly French, but about the 1850’s, the Irish outnumbered the original parishioners. Visitation Street, was located from St. Mary Street northward to the then City Boundary - Church registers under Notre-Dame - Please note, parish registers from about 1826 to 1900 can be found among those of the Basilica of Notre-Dame - BAnQ (1900-1942) - Drouin-Pépin (1900-1942) - QFHS (1900-1942) - Ancestry.ca (1900-1942) - Church photos, see: McCord-Museum www.mccord-museum.ca under access number MP-0000.851.3 - Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/706.html - see also: Originis www.originis.ca/paroisse_montreal-saint-pierre-apotre.html
N.D.G.- Notre Dame de Grâce – Organized in 1856, the region of N.D.G. became in the late 1850’s a primary destination of citizens with a higher level of education and income, among them a large number of Irish, Scottish, British Catholics - BAnQ (1856-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1856-1941) - QFHS (1856-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1856-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/508.html

Victoria Bridge – The Irish Burying-Ground - In 1859, when the approaches to the newly erected Victoria Bridge were being dug, hundreds of skeletons were turned-up by workers, most of whom were Irish. Upon learning that they originated from the fever sheds in Point St. Charles and were actually the bones of their countrymen, the Irish workers would assemble the remains into one location and would place a large round boulder as a monument to which a plaque was riveted which says in part: “To preserve from desecration the remains of 6000 immigrants who died of ship fever, A.D. 1847, this stone is erected by the workers employed in the construction of the Victoria Bridge, A.D. 1859” - see also 1847 under Point St. Charles Fever Sheds - see also Grosse Isle, following the Québec City church listing. Photos, see; McCord Museum, www.mccord-museum.ca

Downtown - Saint Antoine Ward - Mary Queen of the World Cathedral – Prior to 1956, known as Saint Jacques Cathedral – The Cathedral on Dorchester Boulevard (now René-Lévesque) had an appreciable number of Irish, Scottish, British parishioners from 1873 - BAnQ (1873-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1873-1941) - QFHS (1873-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1873-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/499.html

Québec Suburb - Saint James Ward - Saint Brigide Parish – Rev. M.J. Lonergan, presiding – Although it appears that some type of church services were offered to the Irish Catholic families of the region as early as 1846 for about 400 Irish families who resided in a district known at the time, as Québec Suburb, the latter located in south central Montréal in an area near the Jacques Cartier Bridge, wanted their own church. A few years later, in 1867 the Irish families of this district would finally get their wish, Saint Brigide (Bridget) Parish was first organized in a school for boys, the latter located on Dorchester Street between Champlain and de Maisonneuve (Burnside) - In 1872 Saint Brigide (Bridget) was erected on de Maisonneuve Street. The church records from 1872 to 1941 at the Archives can be found under Sainte Brigide - Prior to 1872, from as early as 1846, church records for this region can be found among those of Notre-Dame Basilica - BAnQ (1872-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1872-1941) - QFHS (1872-1941) Ancestry.ca (1872-1941) - Church photos, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/573.html - see also; Originis www.originis.ca/paroisse_montreal_sainte_brigide.html

St. Henry - St. Henri Ward – Saint Joseph - Organized in 1868 in the St. Henry Ward district which was a hub of manufacturing which attracted hundreds of immigrants with their families, among them the Irish. Also known as St. Henri des Tanneries Catholic Church - BAnQ (1868-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1868-1941) - QFHS (1868-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1868-1941) Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/630.html

South East - Saint Mary's Ward – Most Holy Trinity Chapel – Sisters of Charity - Organized in 1868 as part of an orphanage on St. Catherine Street East, it appears that an appreciable number of Irish orphans resided in this establishment. - BAnQ under Crèche de la Miséricorde & Hospice de la Maternité (1873-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1873-1941) - QFHS (1873-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1873-1941) - Church photos, see; http://fr.wikipedia.org/wiki/Domaine_des_%C3%A9urs_grises_de_Montr%C3%A9al

South East - Saint Mary's Ward - Saint Vincent de Paul - Organized in 1868 and located at 2310 Ste-Catherine Street East, the Irish families of a region referred to sometime as St. Mary's Ward were worshippers in this parish - BAnQ (1868-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1868-1941) - QFHS (1868-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1868-1941) - Church photos, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/740.html

Point St. Charles - Saint Gabriel – Rev. William O'Meara, presiding - Saint Gabriel, the third oldest Irish Parish in Montréal - Point St. Charles, referred to by the Irish community as “The Point”, a southwest region of Montreal dedicated to low and mid-income immigrants, many were employees of large factories which were stretched-out across the whole region - The parish was organized in 1873 - BAnQ (1873-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1873-1941) - QFHS (1873-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1873-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/617.html
Côte St. Paul - Saint Paul – The Verdun-Côte St. Paul district has been another bastion of the Irish community since the 1870’s. Located next to “The Point”, the region catered to the mid-income dwellers, among them the immigrants from various European nations including the Irish, Scots and the British - The parish was organized in 1874 - BAnQ (1874-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1874-1941) - QFHS (1874-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1874-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/699.html

Quebec Suburb - Saint Mary’s Ward - Our Lady of Good Counsel - Saint Mary – Rev. M. Campion, Rev. P.F. O’Donnell, presiding - Located in south central Montréal, this Irish church was somehow associated with Saint Bridget, another Irish parish of the same district of Faubourg Québec. Our Lady of Good Counsel was located at the corner of Craig and Panet Streets. Organized in 1881, the parish closed in 1984 - The church records at the Archives can be found under Notre Dame du Bon Conseil - BAnQ (1881-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1881-1941) - QFHS (1881-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1891-1941 under Notre-Dame du Bon Conseil Saint-Mary) - Church photos, see; McCord Museum, www.mccordmuseum.ca

Griffintown - Saint Mary’s – Also known then as the Irish Congregation – Organized in 1879, the church was located on the corner of Panet and Craig Streets – It no longer exists – Saint Mary was also a parish which competed for the heart of the Irish community of Lower Southwest Montréal with Saint Ann, Saint Gabriel and Saint Bridget - BAnQ (1881-1941 under Notre-Dame-du-Bon-Conseil, Saint Mary) - Drouin-Pépin (1881-1941) - QFHS (1881-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1881-1941 under Notre-Dame-du-Bon-Conseil, Saint-Mary) - Church photos, see; McCord Museum, www.mccordmuseum.ca

Point St. Charles - Saint Charles – Organized in 1883, another favorite parish of the Irish in The Point – Although the Parish of Saint Charles had been consecrated as a parish for French Canadians, a number of Irish families also attended services in this house of worship - BAnQ (1883-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1883-1941) - QFHS (1883-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1883-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/580.html

was located on Saint Antoine Street next to the railway yards, as described in 1884. This parish was an Irish church for the families involved with the various railroad companies. Saint Anthony of Padua was located at 1950 St-Antoine street - The church closed in 1970 - BAnQ (1884-1941) - Drouin-

The districts of Montréal in which the Irish resided

During the first half of the 19th century, hundreds upon thousands of emigrants from the British Isles arrived in the port city of Québec. All were fleeing European poverty, famine, and overpopulation. Even though the majority would continue westward, quite a fair number chose to remain in the city. Confronted with a sudden growth in population, authorities would encourage the opening of new townships around Québec City. The majority of these emigrants were Irish Catholics, and many would settle in Portneuf - Lotbinière - Dorchester - Lévis counties, all areas located north and south of the city of Québec. In 1819, the Irish population of Québec City numbered nearly one thousand, by 1830 some estimates places the Irish population at between six to seven thousand or nearly one quarter of the total population. By 1861, 40 percent of Québec City’s 10,000 inhabitants were English-speaking, largely because of Irish families who made up 30 percent of the total population. As early as 1817, Irish Catholic Priests were shepherding the Irish population at Notre Dame Cathedral and most likely at the Diamond Harbour Parish, plus at the Church of the Nativity in nearby Beauport. The first annual Saint Patrick Mass was most likely celebrated in 1819 in the Congregationalist Chapel in Québec City.

The earliest church record I was able to trace in regard to the Irish of the Québec City region was in 1736 in the parish of Saint Augustin in nearby Saint Augustin de Desmaures in Portneuf County – Notre Dame in Québec City claims to have records of Irish births, marriages and burials as early as 1728, also under the French regime. After the Battle of the Plains of Abraham in 1759, the English speaking Catholics of Irish-Scottish-British origin were identified as such, and described as a group by the ruling British Governors and their subordinates.

Saint Patrick’s Day in 1765 - The Quebec Gazette account of Saint Patrick’s Day events in 1765 which read in part: "...besides the divine service, entertainment and toasts will be held at the tavern, followed on the Monday night by a ball" – It appears that the festivities were held at Hugh Maguire’s Shamrock Inn near the Haymarket – Which indicates that the Irish settlers in Québec City in 1765, had grown into a substantial number of families.

Old Quebec - Vieux Québec - Notre Dame Cathedral - Irish parish registers, a few from 1728 to 1818 intermingled with French Canadian families – The church was first organized in 1621, about 1728, under the French regime, a few Irish, or British or Scottish settlers were known to worship in this House of God – From about 1760, under the British Regime, the Cathedral would be the home to many Irish - Scottish - British parishioners - Rev. Patrick McMahon, presiding from 1822 to 1828 - From about 1822 to 1828, Masses were celebrated in both English and French. Prior to the establishment of St. Patrick in 1833, Notre-Dame (Cathedral), plus Notre-Dame de la Garde, Notre-Dame de Saint-Roch and Notre-Dame des Victoires were known as the Irish parishes – At the Archives nationales du Québec, book #785 outlines the marriages of Irish Catholics from 1728 to 1900 - BAnQ microfilms (1621-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1621-1941) - QFHS (1621-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1621-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdenonquartier.com/923.html

Old Quebec - Vieux Québec – Chapel of the Congregationalists - Jesuit Fathers - Rev. Simon Lawlor, presiding – From about 1822 to 1826, church services for the Irish Catholics were held in the Congregational Chapel, the latter was then located within the walls of the Convent of the Jesuit Fathers on Esplanade Hill (d’Auteuil) – Marriages, baptisms, burials were conducted at Notre Dame Cathedral - Church photo, see; http://www.tripadvisor.ca/LocationPhotoDirectLink-g155033-d310843-i72219934-Chapelle_Des_Jesuites-Quebec_City_Quebec.html

organized in 1608 and located next to the Port of Québec, this parish became in 1824 a separate congregation for the Irish immigrants. Father Patrick McMahon, presiding - Early Quebec Irish settlers supplied much of the labour on the docks and built many of Québec’s best-known landmarks. The parish became known to the Irish as Diamond Harbour Chapel - Parish registers, see Notre Dame Cathedral - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/927.html

Sainte Foy - Notre Dame de Foy - First organized in 1679, this parish would welcome its first Irish parishioners in 1821 – Rev. Henry Harkin, Rev. Alexander E. Maguire, presiding - The church burnt down in 1977– Prior to 1977, this church was the third focal point of the Irish community of Québec City. The region of Sainte Foy with nearby Sillery and Cap Rouge is still to this day, the bedroom community of the well-educated and of the professionals of the Old Capital - BAnQ (1699-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1699-1941) - QFHS (1699-1941) Ancestry.ca (1699-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/985a.html

Saint Roch Ward - Notre Dame de Saint-Roch - First organized in 1829, this parish would welcome its first Irish family in 1831 - By 1851, the Irish population of Québec City had climbed to 9120, an 800% increase in thirty years. Saint Roch Ward in Lower Québec City, became the home to the second largest community of Irish families in the city - BAnQ (1829-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1829-1941) - QFHS (1829-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1829-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/925.html

Old Quebec - Vieux Québec - Notre Dame des Anges – First organized in 1728, this chapel was located within the First Québec City Hospital (Hôpital général de Québec) and as such it welcomed many of the new born Irish children as early as 1831 - A book at the Archives Nationales du Québec in Montréal #787, covers in part the Irish Marriages from 1728 to 1900 - Parish registers under Hôpital Général de Québec - BAnQ (1728-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1728-1941) - QFHS (1728-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1728-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/926.html

Upper Town - Haute Ville - Saint-Patrick Church - Organized in 1832 and first located on McMahon Street, close to Hôtel Victoria. Organized for the special use of the Irish Catholic population by the celebrated Father Patrick McMahon. The first mass was celebrated on July 7th 1833. The number of parishioners of Saint Patrick numbered between 6,000 to 8,000 in 1833 - Parish registers of Irish families from 1833 to 1855, see Notre Dame Cathedral or any of the parishes enumerated above within Quebec City - BANQ (1856-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1856-1941) - QFHS (1856-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1856-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/938.html

Upper Town – Haute Ville - Cholera Burying Ground - The cemetery located on Grande Allée was opened during the year of the first cholera in 1832 and lasted until 1856 – In 1832 alone, the cholera epidemic killed 3,451 individuals, the majority were Irish. - see; Cholera Plaque, Quebec - www.gallery.ca/en/see/collections/artwork.php?mkey=4643

Old Quebec - Vieux Québec - Saint Luke (Marine Hospital Catholic Mission) – This hospital in comparison to other much larger hospitals of the region appears to have been the Hospital of the Irish Community in Québec. In 1847, hundreds of Irish immigrants who had been deemed to be in good health at Grosse Isle, upstream on the St. Lawrence were confirmed with the dreaded disease of the typhus fever. A substantial number of these Irish Emigrants would succumb from this plague in various hospitals of the region including Saint Luke – see also Grosse Isle (further down on this compilation) - Previous to this Québec compilation – see within the Montréal portion in 1847 under Point St.Charles Fever Sheds and 1859 under Victoria Bridge - Under Hôpital de la Marine - BANQ (1847-1888) - Drouin-Pépin (1847-1888) - QFHS (1847-1888) - Ancestry.ca (1847-1888) - Cholera Quebec City 1832. see: http://tolkien2008.wordpress.com/2010/08/25/lepidemie-de-cholera-de-lete-1832-a-quebec/

Beauport – Nativity of Notre Dame - First organized in 1673 – In a 1832 document prepared by the Immigration Agent at the Port of Québec, Beauport was listed as being a choice destination of would-be Irish settlers. I was able to ascertain that the first Irish marriage took place in 1854, which might indicate that Irish marriages, baptisms and burials were conducted at nearby Notre Dame Cathedral from 1832 to 1854 - BANQ (1681-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1681-1941) - QFHS (1681-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1681-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - Sillery - Saint-Colomban of Sillery - The second Irish Church in Québec City organized in 1855 – Rev. Peter Henry Harkin, a priest from Ireland was the first Pastor of the new church from 1855 – His successor, Father Alexander Eustace Maguire, requested and served as Pastor of the Catholic Mission at Grosse-Isle in 1871 – His uncle Bishop E. J. Horan served as Pastor at the Island Mission in 1847– Father Maguire did not survive the ordeal of Grosse Isle - The church no longer exists, it has been replaced by Saint-Michael of Sillery - BAnQ (1855-1941 under St-Colomb) - Drouin-Pépin (1855-1941) - QFHS (1855-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1855-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/1070.html

Champlain Ward – Chapel of Our Lady of Perpetual Help - The Irish Chapel - Notre-Dame de la Garde – Chapel located from about 1860 in a former school for Irish boys, this chapel was located near the Port of Québec on Champlain Street – This church was the second home to many of the Irish dock workers, the region was also known as the Cove or Cap Blanc (White Cove) and also referred to by the Irish as Champlain Ward. Many of the Irish workers of that region would also work at the nearby Bell & Taylor Shipyards, in the construction of various ships. The many wharves along the St. Lawrence in Lower Town were the landing places of the immigrants between 1814 to the early 1920’s. All marriages, baptisms and burials would have been carried-out at Saint Patrick or Notre Dame Cathedrals from 1860 to 1884 - BAnQ (1885-1941 under Notre-Dame de la Garde) - Drouin-Pépin (1885-1941) - QFHS (1885-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1885-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/922.html see also; John Hearn-http://www.biographi.ca/en/bio/hearn_john_12E.html

In the spring of 1847, a seagoing ship brought 241 miserable immigrants fleeing the Great Famine in Ireland. They were anchored off Grosse Île, an island below Québec where immigrants with typhus, cholera, and smallpox were quarantined. The Irish immigrants had brought an epidemic that would rage throughout Canada - In the cemetery below Telegraph Hill on Grosse Île stands a monument which says: “In this secluded spot lie the mortal remains of 5424 persons who fleeing from pestilence and famine in Ireland in the year 1847 found in America but a grave”

North Shore of the St. Lawrence

Between 1820 and 1830, the Irish immigrants would move into Portneuf county and would join the Scottish Protestants who had previously established the area some 20 years prior. Towns such as Sainte Catherine of Jacques Cartier, Saint Gabriel of Valcartier, Shannon, Tewksbury, Stoneham, Lake Beauport among others became the new homes of the Irish in these northern communities.

Portneuf County

Many North American Irish descendants will tell you that their Irish ancestors first established their residence in the Portneuf region of Québec City. The region attracted Irish and Scottish farmers as early as 1816. The quality of the land is fertile and ideal for small farm owners. Portneuf County is located along the northern shores of the St. Lawrence River, slightly upstream and west of Québec City – The leading Irish communities of Portneuf County and nearby Québec County were Sainte Catherine of Jacques Cartier (1832), Wexford Road of St. Gabriel of Valcartier (1820), Saint Gabriel of Valcartier (1820), Stoneham (1824), Shannon (1830), St. Dunstan (1830), Pont Rouge (1834) with surrounding communities such as Portneuf, St. Raymond, St. Basile, St. Christine and others. Most were farming communities with 50-acre farms. The region in the 1830’s was a primary destination for Irish farmers with a North American destination who were willing to settle on a small acreage.
Deschambault (Portneuf) – Saint Joseph – First organized in 1713, in 1798 the first Irish and Scottish families were known to reside in the region - In 1832, the Government of Lower Canada issued a document addressed to Irish settlers arriving at the Port of Québec, indicating in part that the region of Portneuf county was a choice destination of Irish homesteaders, among the towns of the region listed by the government were Deschambault, Tewksbury, Val Cartier, Beauport, Stoneham, Jacques Cartier and the town of Portneuf - BAnQ (1713-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1713-1941) - QFHS (1713-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1713-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/870.html

Shannon of Jacques Cartier – Saint-Joseph’s Mission - A mission field of the early 1830’s of the parish of Sainte-Catherine-de-la-Jacques Cartier - The Shannon mission church no longer exists but the small Irish community is still active to this day and some of their parishioners are members of the Québec City Region of English Speaking Religious Organizations which includes Protestant and Catholic church groups - BAnQ under Ste-Catherine de la Jacques Cartier (1832-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1832-1941) - QFHS (1832-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1832-1941) - History of Shannon, Quebec - http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Shannon_Quebec - Church photo of St. Catherine of Jacques Cartier, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/966.html

Fossambault of Portneuf - Pont Rouge – Saint Patrick a mission field of the parish of Sainte-Catherine de la Jacques Cartier – Between 1821 and 1828, the Seigniory of Fossambault would grant acreage suitable for farming to Andrew Wilson, George Thompson, John McCord, James Morrow on the Brulé Range. These four families were the first Irish settlers west of St. Catherine of Portneuf. Another source indicates that these early British Isles pioneers might have originated from Scotland or Ulster The region was also known as Cap Santé - BAnQ (1832-1940 under Ste-Catherine-de-la-Jacques-Cartier) - Drouin-Pépin (1832-1940) - QFHS (1832-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1832-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/966.html

Saint Augustin – Saint Augustin – First organized in 1694 and located along the banks of the St. Lawrence, just west of Cap Rouge, Sainte Foy and Sillery, the region in the 1800’s was most likely the best fertile land for farming in the Québec City region. To this day, large farms are still operational. The first Irish settlers in the region were worshipping at this church from about 1845 - BAnQ (1694-1941 under St-Augustin-de-Desmaures) - Drouin-Pépin (1694-1941) - QFHS (1694-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1694-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier -

Tewksbury – Saint James (Saint-Jacques) - The region was first served by a mission as early as 1865, most likely as a mission of Stoneham or Saint Gabriel of Jacques Cartier, only in 1921 did the church of Saint James opened its doors with a new church building. The church still exists to this day, it is only opened during the summer months – Tewksbury was decreed by the management of the Port of Québec in 1832 as being a recommended destination for would-be Irish homesteaders. Please note that the town of Tewksbury is part of the county of Québec, but the town has always been associated with Portneuf county - BA\textsc{nQ} (1921-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1921-1941) - QFHS (1921-1941) - Ancestry\textsc{.}ca (1921-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/1072a.html

Québec County

Stoneham - Saint-Edmond of Stoneham - As early as 1817, Irish settlers, American families from Connecticut plus Scottish and British homesteaders were settling the area. The town of Stoneham was recommended in the early 1830’s by the British authorities as a destination of choice for Irish emigrants who wanted to settle on their own small farms. Although the region was far from being a perfect match for productive farming, this region being surrounded by mountains did receive a fair number of immigrant families. The parish registers of St. Edmond of Stoneham only begin in 1851, from about 1817 to 1832, in regard to acts of baptism, marriage, death verify Notre-Dame Cathedral in Quebec City and from 1832 to 1851, verify Sainte-Catherine de la Jacques-Cartier, the latter under the county of Portneuf, the latter being the portion prior to Québec county. Saint Gabriel of Valcartier – Saint Gabriel - From about 1820 onward, this region plus Saint Catherine of Jacques Cartier, Saint Gabriel was the basically the heart of the Irish people in Portneuf county – The first Irish marriage took place in 1843 in the above region - Parish registers from about 1820 to 1832, see Notre Dame Cathedral in Quebec City and from 1832 to 1843, see Sainte-Catherine-de-la-Jacques-Cartier - BAnQ (1843-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1843-1941) - QFHS (1843-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1843-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/1082.html

Beauport Region

The region of Beauport is located east and north of Québec City and its northern limit is adjacent to the eastern limit of Portneuf County. These two regions located north of Québec City were first settled by Scottish immigrants between 1780 and 1790 to be followed from about 1820 to 1830 by Irish farmers. The majority of the farms allocated were small, less than 25 acres in a mountainous region, not suited for the raising of large crops. The latter does explain the exit of many of the Irish and Scots within three generations to better lifestyles in southern Québec, Ontario, the western provinces and the United States of America

Ste-Brigitte de Laval - Sainte Brigitte de Laval – Parish organized in 1834 and located slightly north of Lake Beauport. The first settlers to the parish appears to have been Irish immigrant families. Although the town of Sainte Brigitte de Laval is located within the county of Montmorency, the northern region of the latter is situated next to Portneuf county, the latter being the centre of Irish settlements in the late 1820's and early 1830's - BAnQ (1834-1941) - Drouin-Pépin (1834-1941) - QFHS (1834-1941) - Ancestry.ca (1834-1941) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier -

Bellechasse County

The territory in present-day County of Bellechasse was first established by French colonists about 1678 under the French regime. In 1778, Veronique Ward, daughter of Paul Ward and Veronique Boulet married Jean Baiejon in the church of Saint Charles de Bellechasse – In 1787, Mary McLean, daughter of Ignace McLean and of Louise Therrien married Michael Beatty in the Church of Saint Michel de Bellechasse, son of Charles and Angelique Beatty – In 1789, Mary McLean, daughter also of Ignace and Catherine McLean, married in the Church of Saint Michel de Bellechasse, Nicholas Boissonnault – In 1795 in the Church of Saint Vallier de Bellechasse, Anthony McNeil, son of Ignace and Catherine McNeil married Elisabeth Dannis dit Lapierre – These are only a few of the Irish and Scottish pioneers who settled Bellechasse County prior to 1800, many more fellow countrymen would follow.

Dorchester County

The region of St-Malachie, originally called East Frampton, owes its development to a great number of Irish and Scottish immigrants who fled Europe devastated by the famine in the beginning of the 19th century. About 1806, several families left Ireland in order to settle in Canada, among these emigrants, a great number would settle in the township of St-Malachie, Frampton and surrounding villages. Few Irish live in Frampton today and the townships resembles countless others in rural Québec. Save for the graveyards. Their tombstones recall a past built and sustained by Irish families – names such as O’Neill, Doyle, Fitzgerald, Redmond, Kelly, O’Connell, Corrigan, Dillon, Cullen, Kennedy, Kilcullen, Kinsella, Lonergan, Lyons, O’Farrell, Quigley and many others -

Lotbinière County

The Seigniory of Lotbinière begins at the St. Lawrence River, south of Québec City and stretches southeastward to the border of Mégantic County. It is mainly rural. Of the 22 Catholic parishes established since the days of the seigneurial system, Irish settlements were mainly confined to areas along Gosford Road in the southern parishes of Saint-Sylvestre, Sainte-Agathe, Saint-Gilles (Giles), Saint-Patrick of Beaurivage and the parishes, which bordered with Mégantic County. In the 1820’s the southern parishes received a large contingent of Irish Catholics who were assigned 50-acre lots as tenant farmers, interspersed with French and Scottish farmers – The Protestants of Lotbinière were few in comparison to the Catholics. The Protestant presence in Lotbinière began in 1831 with preaching-points established in various villages located along Craig Road by Presbyterian, Wesleyan Methodist and Anglican Missionaries. The Irish Protestants of the region, mostly lived in nearby Mégantic County to the west, in regions referred to at the time as Leeds, Inverness, Kinnear’s Mills, Ireland, most of them, located along the famous Craig’s Road.

Craig and Gosford Roads – The Governor of Lower Canada Sir James Henry Craig, issued a decree in 1810 for the construction of a road between St. Gilles and Richmond, a distance of 75 miles – In 1838, Governor Archibald Acheson, Count of Gosford orders the construction of a second road, this one between Ste. Agathe and Sherbrooke.

Beauce County

About 1821 the first Irish emigrants would settle in the parish of Sainte-Marie. From 1855 onwards, there was a steady and heavy outward migration toward Saint-George(s) to the east and to other parishes located along the Valley of the Chaudière River toward the State of Maine. The soil was fertile and well drained and ideal for small dairy farms. The strong Irish presence of the 1850’s in this region is still felt to this day with descendants within the French community with Irish surnames or Irish ancestors.

Mégantic County
In the 1847-1855 time-frame, both Mégantic and Lotbinière experienced a substantial influx of Irish immigrants. In 1831, the population of Mégantic County totaled 2200 individuals, 85% Protestants, 9% Irish Catholics, 6% French Catholics. Unfortunately, some of the regions of Mégantic and Lotbinière were not ideal locations for farming, the soil was poor and rocky, many of the farms were settled on hilly fields, definitely not a suitable solution for modern farming practices, which resulted in a migration within two generations to more fertile and larger farms in Southern Ontario, the Prairie Provinces, the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas and others.

Frontenac County
Father Bernard O’Reilly would publish in 1848, a series of articles which would describe the lack of Irish Catholic Missions throughout the Eastern Townships and regions east and north of the latter. These articles were reproduced in various newspapers in cities such as Montréal, Québec and Trois Rivières. Father O’Reilly’s petition was most likely the overture required to launch the establishment of Irish Catholic Missions in the Eastern Townships. The first such mission was established in 1848 in Roxton Falls.

Drummond County

Prior to 1805, the region now known as Drummond county was owned by William Grant. After 1805, the territory was purchased by John Richardson, future Governor of Lower Canada and founder of the Bank of Montreal – In 1814, the colonization process began with the allocation of lands to officers and soldiers of the Imperial Army – The county and main city was named in honor of Sir Gordon Drummond, Governor General of Canada - In 1815, about 100 families resided in the future county - The first Catholic Church of the region was established in 1815 in Drummondville – Father J. Rainbault in 1818 became the first Missionary to travel through-out the Eastern Townships from his home church of Saint Frédéric, he would preside over the first Mass as a missionary in 1818 in a private home in Richmond.

Nicolet County
Located across from Trois Rivières, and north of Drummond county, very few Irish farmers settled-in the region – In 1847, a group of Irish immigrants would settle into the parish of Saint-Zéphirin-de-Courval. Other towns, were Aston, Blandford, Horton, although it appears that the number of Irish families were few in numbers and their periods of residence were short-lived.

Eastern Townships

Eastern Townships Catholic Missions - Missions des Cantons de l’Est – 1826-1846 - Father Stephen Blyth - Father John Falvey - Father James Hughes - Father Terence Kieran - Father John McMahon - Father James Moore - Father Charles Morrison - Father Patrick Phelan – All of them born in Ireland with the exception of Fr. Morrison, all served the Eastern Townships from 1826 to 1846, all served the Irish and Scottish community in regions from Stanstead county to Huntingdon county – They would baptize children, marry couples, bless the remains at cemeteries and guide people throughout the Townships – Unfortunately most of the church records from 1826 to 1833 did not survive. What survived is an index of marriages, baptisms and burials kept at the Archives Nationales du Québec on Viger street covering the period of 1826-1846 under book #1970 – Another book #153 also covers in part some the same Missions – A microfilm under the name of Missions des Cantons de l’Est cover some of the baptisms, marriages and burials from 1838 to 1846 under microfilms #1151c & #261 - In addition to, it appears that some of these baptisms, marriages and burials from 1826 to 1831 for the towns of Sherrington, Hinchinbrook, Beauharnois, Ormstown, Jamestown (NY), Williamstown (NY), Hemmingford, Babyville (Huntingdon), Chateauguay were actually inserted into the church records of the parish of Saint Patrick in Hinchinbrook, county of Huntingdon – see also Athelstan as a possible source- see also;

Stanstead County
People from Derby Line in Orleans County, Vermont and Stanstead of the same county-name in Québec have been sharing a common border since the American Revolution. People of these two counties have been inter-marrying, some family members were married in one country, had their children baptized into the other and were buried on both sides of the border. Members of the British, Scot, American, Irish and French communities of this region can attest to have family members on both sides of the border. The area was also known as a crossing point for families who had decided to establish a permanent residence in the U.S.A., and such was the case for thousands of Irish families in the 1800’s and early 1900’s. The first Catholic Church was organized in the county in 1848. - see; http://www.tomifobia.com/genealogy/lepitre.html

Richmond County

Richmond County is considered by many historians as being the Home of the Irish in the Eastern Townships. The St. Patrick’s Society in Richmond is the oldest Irish Society in Québec outside of Montréal. In 2002, in honor of the many Irish and other Celtic settlers, the St. Pat’s Society of Richmond unveiled a splendid granite Celtic Cross in downtown Richmond. Shefford County

As early as 1831, Catholic Missionaries would criss-cross the county, baptizing, marrying and even blessing the departed ones at local cemeteries - The first permanent Irish Catholic Mission to be established in the Townships by Father Bernard O'Reilly was located in Roxton Falls in 1848. The establishment and staffing of this mission was soon repeated throughout various other regions of the Townships and districts east and north of the Townships. Granby being its hub, the county of Shefford was first settled by American, British, Scottish immigrants in the late 1790’s. The Irish would settle the region, in the early 1840’s.

Brome County

Many early Brome settlers were loyalists from New England. As early as 1792, settlers pushed east along the Missisquoi River from Missisquoi Bay into a region to be later described as Brome County, which would feature future villages such as Abercorn, Bolton, Brome, Eastman, Fulford, Glen Sutton, Knowlton, Mansonville, Potton, Sutton, Vale Perkins. The first Catholic Church was established in 1831 as a Mission known then as “Cantons de l’Est”. It does appear that this Catholic Mission was staffed by Travelling Missionaries and was not located in any permanent buildings.

Missisquoi County

The first migrants arrived in Missisquoi Bay in the 1770’s and 1780’s, mainly from New York’s upper Hudson and Mohawk River Valleys. They would settle in towns such as Dunham, Stanbridge, Bedford, Pigeon Hill, Noyan, Cowansville, Philipsburg, St-Armand, Frelighsburg among others. As early as 1847, a few Irish Catholic families had settled the county.

Huntingdon County

About 1780, Huntingdon County was being formed. As early as 1810, villages such as Huntingdon, Athelstan, St-Anicet, Hemmingford, Power’s Court, Franklin Centre, Dundee, Hinchinbrook were being incorporated into townships. The first Catholic Church was established in 1810 in St-Anicet. The church of Ste-Agnès of Dundee, stems back to the early 1860’s when local residents began work to establish the church. From 1840 and perhaps a little before, Irish Catholics from Huntingdon County were known to worship at Saint Patrick in Hogansburg, New York, the latter church would also be a central point of Catholics of Franklin County, north eastern St. Lawrence County, plus the English speaking residents of South West Quebec, especially those residing in Huntingdon and Chateauguay Counties – From about 1850, St. Mary’s Parish in Fort Covington, New York served the Irish and Scottish Catholic residents of the townships, region and county of Huntingdon.

Sherrington - Hinchinbrooke - Beauharnois - Ormstown - Jamestown - Williamstown - Hemmingford - Babyville - Chateauguay – An index of parish records of baptisms, marriages, burials between the years 1826 and 1846, are most likely the only surviving documents related to these Missions. The latter were transcribed before the disappearance of the actual documents from a Court vault in Valleyfield. Only the index survived, the latter was reproduced as part of two books, entitled Missions des Cantons de l’Est (Missions of the Eastern Townships) kept at BAnQ on Viger street in Montreal #153 (1831-1851 marriages) & #1970 (1826-1846 baptisms, marriages, deaths)

Godmanchester – Cantons de l’Est Missionnaires Catholiques (Eastern Townships Catholic Missionaries) - Organized in 1829 – One of the earliest Catholic Mission in Huntingdon county – see the previous selection in regard to surviving parish registers

Rockburn (Rennie’s Corner) – Parish of Rockburn, also referred to as the Old Catholic Church - Organized in 1831 or perhaps slightly prior, in 1929 the church burned down to the ground – The parishioners would worship from that point on at Saint Patrick in Hinchinbrook.- The only known source reference in regard to the burials at this church are kept at BAnQ Montreal as part of book #1480, pages 297 to 300, burials from 1831 to 1929

St-Anicet - Saint Anicet Mission of the Eastern Townhips Missions - First Organized about 1810, the first Irish and Scottish Catholics appear to have settled the area prior to 1831 – In 1822 Father James Moore was appointed Pastor of the parish - BAnQ (1818-1940) - Drouin-Pépin (1818-1940) - QFHS (1818-1940) - Ancestry.ca (1818-1940) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/1826.html

Hinchinbrook – Eastern Townships Catholic Missionaries First organized in 1829 – see 1826, under Missions des Cantons de l'Est, a few lines above

baptism I was able to find of a Canadian resident was the baptism of a Mary Connors in 1840, daughter of John Connors and of Mary O’Brien of the region of St. Regis on the Québec side. - see; stmaryfort@centralny.twcbc.com

Fort Covington – Saint Mary’s Parish - Franklin County – New York - From about 1850 and perhaps prior, Irish and Scottish Canadians from Huntingdon and perhaps Chateauguay Counties were known to attend church services at Saint Mary’s Parish. It stands to reason that one would find baptism and marriage documents at this Parish related to the early English speaking Catholics from the southwest region of Lower Canada. - see; stmaryfort@centralny.twcbc.com

Athelstan - Kensington  – Saint Patrick – Organized in 1858, a preaching point of Saint Patrick in Hinchinbrook, see the next posting.

Hinchinbrooke Township – Saint Patrick – Organized about 1858 and located south of Rockburn on Range 1, the church of the Irish burned down in 1935 or 1936, a new church was erected in 1936. The church served many of the Irish families who settled in the vicinity - BAnQ (1862-1939) - Drouin-Pépin (1862-1939) - QFHS (1862-1939) - Ancestry.ca (1862-1939) - Church photo, see; Inventaire des lieux de culte du Québec - www.lieuxdeculte.qc.ca/fiche.php?LIEU_CULTE > Église Saint-Patrice

Chateauguay County

The Chateauguay Valley was first established in 1638 under the French Regime, when François de Lauzon was first conceded the Seigniory of Chateauguay. As early as 1827 many Scottish and Irish families moved in along the Chateauguay river. The Church of Saint Malachie in Ormstown could probably be described as the first true Irish Church in the valley, although the Parish of Sainte Martine most likely preceded Saint Malachie as a worship centre of the Irish and Scottish. An Irish cemetery was established in the late 1820’s in Dewittville.

Ormstown - Dewittville – Saint Malachie - First organized in 1825, the parish of Saint Malachie and Sainte Martine appears to be the first Catholic church of the Valley to actually welcome Irish and Scottish immigrants as early as 1832 – Although the region of Glengarry across the St. Lawrence in the eastern portion of the Ottawa Valley was the favorite destination of Catholic Irish Highlanders, it is not known by this writer of the extent of the migration of the latter group into Chateauguay and Huntingson Counties in the early 1800’s – In 1846, Father Terence Kieran was assigned to the parish, he would serve the region until 1852 – Father Kieran had been ordained in Dublin, Ireland on June 10th 1843 and left for Lower Canada in December of the same year - BAnQ (1846-1940) - Drouin-Pépin (1846-1940) - QFHS (1846-1940) - Ancestry.ca (1846-1940) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/1818.html

Beauharnois County
From 1842 to 1845, more than 2,000 manual workers, many of them Irish were hired for the construction of the Beauharnois Canal and Lock. Following the completion of the canal work, many of the same Irish workers with members of their families would settle in the region. The pulp and paper industry had previously settled in the Valleyfield / Beauharnois region with wood transforming plants, thus creating hundreds of employment opportunities for the Irish workers.

The Richelieu Valley is one of the first regions to be settled under the French Regime, Chambly (1665), Sorel (1670) in addition to smaller villages along the river. Some of the first settlers were former soldiers of the various French regiments who had been stationed along the banks of this crucial river between Lake Champlain and the St. Lawrence River. The majority of these former French soldiers became farmers of the region. Under the British Regime, the Anglicans would establish a mission at Fort St. John’s in 1781, a British fort, and again former soldiers of various British regiments would settle in the region, most of the latter group became farmers - The Richelieu River has always been an important link of transportation and commercial trading between the USA to the south and the St. Lawrence River to the north. In 1818, the Government of Lower Canada gave permission for the building of the Chambly Canal. From 1831 to 1843, hundreds of Irish workers helped in the construction of the canal and many would settle in the various communities bordering the Richelieu River. Many of the descendants of these Irish workers would settle on farms throughout the region. – In 1769, Alexander MacDonald married on January 31st Cecile Mimeau in the Parish of Saint Charles sur le Richelieu. She was the daughter of Joseph Mimeau and of Céline Charron. He was most likely a British soldier from Scotland – A line on the marriage document indicated in French “pays d’origine Écosse”

Lower Laurentian - Eastern Region

Montcalm - Joliette - Berthier - Maskinongé - Terrebonne Counties

The former lumber town of Rawdon is the cultural and economic heart of Lanaudiere’s remaining English-speaking population. The region was first established in 1815 by Irish, Scottish, English and French settlers. Rawdon’s Irish Catholics established two internationally renowned schools. St-Anne’s Convent on Lake Morgan Road, which dates to Confederation and St-Anselme’s Academy on Queen street, the later was founded in 1910. In the early 1830’s this region was then known as Rawdon, Joliette, Berthier and Terrebonne Counties, and as such, the region was highly recommended by the Port Authority in Quebec as a destination of choice for Irish emigrants wishing to become farm owners, the towns of Rawdon, Kilkenny, Kildare, Brandon were singled-out in such a document dated 1832, the latter being handed-out to Irish Emigrants upon their arrival in Québec.

Lower Laurentian – Western Region

Lake of Two Mountains County

British and American homesteaders founded a colony where the North River joins the Ottawa in about 1785. St-Eustache was the gateway for French-speaking settlers who moved up the North River as early as 1815. Catholic Missionaries from Montebello, along the northern shores of the Ottawa Valley, were marrying, baptizing Catholics on both side of the river from 1815. Some of these church indexes are available at the Pontiac Archives (see details at the conclusion of the Pontiac County listing of churches). About 1835, Irish settlers would establish a community of their own, which they would name St-Colomban. The community attracted many Irish residents from Montreal who were not afraid of the hardships of frontier life and they also brought valuable skills needed in a pioneer settlement. St-Colomban is known to the Irish as the cradle of the Irish Community of the Lower Laurentians. Located slightly north of St. Jérôme, above the North River and south of Mille Isles and Lakefield.

Upper Laurentian – Western Region

Argenteuil County

Argenteuil County, a region also known as West Laurentians was founded as a colony by American settlers about 1785 with the establishment of communities such as Lachute, Harrington, Grenville, Lakefield, Gore, Arundel, Brownsburg, Morin Heights and others. At a later time-frame, the British, Scots, French and Irish would join the ranks of the first pioneers. Even in English-speaking communities, the Irish were a minority in most areas. Some historians are placing the arrival of Irish Homesteaders in Lachute in 1790, Harrington in 1825, Grenville in 1825, St. Andrew East 1825, Millers-Isles 1825. The first parish was established in 1830 in Saint Andrew East, it is quite conceivable that many of the Irish Catholics would wait for the Travelling Missionaries in order to have their children baptized and married at a later age. As early as 1815, Catholic Missionaries from Montebello were baptizing and marrying Irish and French settlers on both sides of the Ottawa River (see Pontiac Archives at the conclusion of the Pontiac County church listing for details).

Saint Andrew of Argenteuil – Saint Andrew East - Organized in 1830, Irish families were present in the region about the same period of time - The church is now referred to as Saint-André-Apôtre or Saint-André-Est - BAnQ (1833-1939) - Drouin-Pépin (1833-1939) - QFHS (1833-1939) - Ancestry.ca (1833-1939) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/1533.html

Gore – First settled in 1834 – A few Irish Catholic farmers settled in Gore about 1834. It does not appear that a Catholic Mission was ever erected in Gore Township. The few Irish families most likely traveled to Saint Andrew East to have their children baptized or simply became members of Trinity Anglican Mission, the latter organized in 1837

Grenville – Notre Dame - Organized 1839, Irish families were present within the region in the 1830s, perhaps a few earlier - BAnQ (1839-1940) - Drouin-Pépin (1839-1940) - QFHS (1839-1940) - Ancestry.ca (1839-1940) - Church photo, see; Les églises de mon quartier - www.leseglisesdemonquartier.com/1515.html

Western Quebec

Western Quebec was initially an English speaking area, for it had been unpopulated beyond the region of Montebello along the northern shores of the Ottawa River in today’s Papineau County. About 1800, Philemon Wright from Massachusetts would settle in an area north of the Ottawa River to be later named Hull. The Irish soon became predominant in the region, especially in the region of Shawville in today’s Pontiac County. The French presence within Gatineau and Pontiac counties prior to 1840 was basically nonexistent. Irish Protestants and Catholics would first settle the regions west and north of Hull as early as 1815. This region along the shores of the Gatineau River was well suited for farming. Catholic Parishes such as Saint Stephen’s of Old Chelsea and Saint Elizabeth’s of Cantley were two of the early churches. Irish settlements began to be established after 1820 in the region known as Clarendon Township in today’s Pontiac County. The town of Shawville was initially settled by Irish Protestants, the town of Bristol was first settled by Scots, both of these villages were part of Clarendon Township. The towns of Wakefield and Masham were settled in part as early as 1815 by Catholic Irish emigrants from counties such as Carleton from across the Ottawa River in what was then Upper Canada in today’s Ontario. The regions north of Wakefield along the shores of the Gatineau River were first settled by Irish Protestants in the mid 1850’s, the latter originated in part from the township of Carp, a region located between Ottawa and Renfrew.

Early Catholic parish registers in Pontiac - Hull - Gatineau - Papineau - Argenteuil counties in regard to indexes of marriages, baptisms and burials. As per Elsie Sparrow, archivist at the Pontiac Archives in Shawville, Ms. Sparrow declared a few years back; The early catholic missionary priests from as early as 1815 from the parish of Notre Dame in Montebello, the latter in today’s Papineau county were visiting communities along the Ottawa River from Montebello through Argenteuil, Gatineau, Hull, Pontiac counties and would also visit the hamlets on the Ontario side of the Ottawa river in areas such as the Upper Ottawa Valley, Bytown (Ottawa) and the farming communities in the Ottawa Valley - See Pontiac Archives for details at the conclusion of the Pontiac county church listing.

Papineau County

The county of Papineau, is located west of Argenteuil county, from the shores of the Ottawa River into the mountainous region of the Laurentians. The Irish presence was substantial in towns such as Mayo, Buckingham, Thurso, Masson, Mulgrave, Fassett, Derry, Lochaber among others. Although the region is the least populated district of the Outaouais territory, the Irish would join the ranks of workers within the lumber industry and some even tried farming. The Laurentian-farms were nestled in valleys and most would fail. The farms were too small, too rocky and the best farming locations had previously been secured by American settlers at an earlier date. It can be argued that most Catholic Parishes in Papineau County had an Irish presence. Most genealogists including myself will attest to this fact.

Gatineau County

Lower Gatineau, was first inhabited by the Algonquin and Huron Nations. English-speaking settlers came to the Lower Gatineau in the early 1800’s. By the 1830’s the Gatineau Valley was the main source of timber in the Ottawa River region: Aylmer, Old Chelsea, Wakefield, Farrellton, and Low were the first communities to spring-up, north and west of Hull. Some of these same areas were also proficient for farming. By the end of the 1820’s, Irish farmers outnumbered their American counterparts in the district of Old Chelsea. Farrellton was another community built by Catholic Irish colonists in the 1840’s. Protestant Irish pioneers from Northern Ireland were also important contributors to the development of the region as early as 1830.

Pontiac County

The famous Ottawa River linked First Nations villages for centuries and became Canada’s main fur-trade route. Algonquin, Hurons used the waterway to bring pelts to French merchants in Québec and Montréal. British and American immigrants started claiming the region in the early 1800’s. Much of the anglophone heritage of the region was rooted in the wood trade and the westward flow of settlers in the 19th century. Shawville, Campbell’s Bay, Bryson, Portage du Fort, Fort Coulange, Ladysmith were the first to be established as early as the 1810’s. Protestant Irish settlers from Northern Ireland, Scots, British and Americans were the first pioneers to settle the above mentioned towns. Catholic Irish first appeared in the region in the 1820’s in the Chapeau, Quyon, Vinton, Portage du Fort districts. As early as 1815, Missionary Priests from Montebello visited the area in order to baptize, marry local Catholic residents, both Irish and French. The Catholic Parishes of today’s Pontiac County are part of the Diocese of Pembroke. Unfortunately, the Archives Nationales du Québec microfilm collection plus the Drouin microfilm collection contain very few parishes. On the other hand, an appreciable number of books dealing mostly with marriages are available at the Archives on Viger Street in Montreal. In order to obtain copies of baptisms, burials and even marriages, it is suggested to contact the Diocese of Pembroke at:

info@diocesepembroke.ca or at: www.diocesepembroke.ca or at: 613-732-7933 or at: PO Box 7 188 Renfrew Street, Pembroke, ON K8A 6X1 – It is most likely, that the Diocese will ask you to contact the Parishes on a direct basis. By accessing their Web Site, one can easily have direct access to most parishes through emails. Another source is the Pontiac Archives in Shawville (see details at the conclusion of this church listing)

Abitibi - Temiscaming Region

In Abitibi, Irish families would settle in communities such as Rouyn-Noranda, Val D’Or, Amos, Senneterre, Boulamaque, Chapais, Farmborough, Miquelon, Duparquet plus the mining communities of Cadillac and Chibougamau. The county of Témiscamingue was first settled by Catholics about 1844. Father Laverlochère, an Oblate Missionary would crisscross the territory from 1844 to 1884. Ville Marie, Notre Dame du Nord and Fabre were the first villages in Témiscamingue with permanent churches prior to 1900.

Bonaventure County

The region also known as Chaleur Bay had its origin with the Micmac First Nation. In the early 1800, an appreciable number of families from Ireland, Scotland, Britain, and the Channel Islands would migrate to the area and would inter-mingle with the established local settlers, the Micmacs and the Acadians. The first permanent Catholic Church of the Bay region was the Church of Sainte-Anne, a Mission Church of the Mi’gmaq Nation in the town of Listuguj (Restigouche), the latter church organized in 1759.
